

Dear Mrs. Gonzales,

I hope you are having a wonderful day. I would love to be able to help your son to the best of my ability! I have been doing my best to incorporate more differentiated learning opportunities for all of my students. So to answer your question, yes, it is possible for me to add more differentiated learning opportunities. I plan to do small groups each morning for the students to be able to come work with me at my desk to re-teach topics from a week prior. On every topic, I would like to incorporate visual and auditory instruction for every topic I cover. Some specific examples for reading, we can look into reading books with a partner so your child can have some assistance if needed with another child.

Each child is special and learns in their own special ways, with this I will teach through visual ways as well as verbally. This can help him physically see something instead of just hearing. Another example of a way we can help him is making sure he is in a quiet environment when he is learning, this can be crucial to a child's learning if they are overwhelmed with noises. I think your child is doing great and each child learns differently. I will be able to differentiate your son's work by setting him in small groups that have similar interests and learning abilities as your son. I also will differentiate his learning by using all learning styles.

I would love to meet with you if you have any more thoughts or concerns. Please just let me know a day and time that would work best for you. Thank you so much for sending me an email with your thoughts and concerns. Please let me know when you would be available to have a meeting.

Thank you for reaching out and I hope to hear from you soon,
